

2011 Esri International User Conference

Student Assistantship Program

Your Opportunity to Attend the Largest GIS Conference in the World

If you are a graduate student or fourth-year undergraduate student who uses or applies geospatial applications and concepts to your coursework, you may apply to the Esri International User Conference Student Assistantship Program. Up to 60 students will be selected to attend and assist with the Esri International User Conference (Esri UC) July 11–15, 2011, in San Diego, California. More than 12,000 Esri® software users will gather at this annual event to increase their technical knowledge and share their ideas and successes.

What You Will Gain

In addition to meeting and networking with other students from around the globe who share a passion for geographic information system (GIS) technology, participants will receive

- A full registration to the conference
- Hotel accommodations
- A small stipend for meals
- The opportunity to learn more about GIS technology

In exchange, students assist Esri staff with registration, monitoring sessions, setup, teardown, operations, and overall logistics of many events. Students are responsible for their own travel and personal expenses.

What's Next?

Visit our Web site to hear from former participants and get full details on the program, including application instructions.

www.esri.com/grads

Applications must be received by April 1, 2011.

Selected students will be notified by April 29, 2011.

Student assistants ready to greet UC attendees at registration

Participants in the 2010 Esri Student Assistantship Program

“The Esri UC is the place to be if you have any sort of interest in geography or GIS. To be one of 60 students selected to participate in the Student Assistantship Program is more than an honor. It’s a lifetime opportunity that only comes around once.”

Megan, 2010 Esri UC Student Assistant

